Tips & Hints when you have shower handle leaking in your property

A worn valve stem washer is the culprit behind a leaking shower faucet handle. The valve stem is behind the handle and controls the flow of water. The washer on the back of the valve stem constantly is under pressure, eventually wearing out. When the valve stem washer no longer provides a tight seal, the result is water leaking around the faucet handle. Make sure that you turn the water supply off before you remove a valve stem or you will have water shooting across the shower.

Tips & Hints when you have shower unit leaking in your property

A leaky shower unit is annoying and wastes money. Fixing a leaking shower head requires either replacing the shower cartridge or cleaning the shower head. If the leak is at the head, most often a new washer and some cleaning resolves the leak. A leak around the handle or from the shower head with the water off requires replacing the shower diverter cartridge.
